Leslie E. McIntire Tells Farmers Export of Power Will be Beneficial

Leslie E. McIntire is strongly in favor of exporting power and he has been the speaker at many meetings, talking on the export question.

Mr. McIntire tells his fellow farmers and Grangers that not only would approval of the Smith-Carlton surplus power export act greatly benefit the state in general, but the farmers' power would be vastly improved in the form of rural electrification and other advantages accruing from cheaper power.

Talking in an earnest manner he sketched the history of the state for the last 20 years and pointed out that while it is far from going to the dogs, it has been slow to progress, in fact, has markedly lagged in comparison with the greater number of other states.

Mr. McIntire said that the reason for this is that Maine people have lacked vision, he said. In their conservatism they have leaned too far backward. He said, however, that the time has come when the farmers must get out of their power trust, the "octopus" and tainted money.

"Why," he declared, "so-called tainted money is only Maine people's money coming back in another form. It is the use of our immediate forbears to spend money in the savings banks, only to have it fall to sons and daughters, living in other states, and out of the reasons why Maine has been so slow to progress, thus belies its motto, 'Dirigo'."

What assurance have the people of Maine that they will be allowed to buy power at the same rate as that sold on the side of the state? queried one in a recent audience.

"You have this assurance," said Mr. McIntire. "In the event the power companies are assured of a big market for their product, they will immediately spend millions in building great storage plants and power houses. Then, when there is no call for that power, they will seek a market outside, but the needs of Maine will always have first call, and at the same price."

No Danger of Power Grab

"I have been a farmer all of my life and expect to die one," Mr. McIntire declared. "And I tell you folks in all seriousness that if a power grab, or our being robbed of our God-given rights, is pure bunk. I am firmly convinced that the so-called Smith-Carlton power export act fully safeguards the people of Maine in their inherent right."

"Let us give this law a trial, and if we find that it is not working to our liking, we can repeat it, notwithstanding the hue and cry of those who hit upon selfish purposes are using this question the same as it has been used for a score of years—as a political football."

Some folks are suspicious of the power companies. They are suspicious of the same as they were of the Standard Oil when it first came into our State. You all know that Maine is the only state that put a law on the export of power. Is this stand consistent? Is there a law on potatoes, on hay, or grain, or any of the many products, both natural and manufactured, that originate in this state?

"I was amused a few weeks ago, during a meeting similar to this one. A very stern-faced gentleman in concluding his talk said: 'May the day never come when we give up our God-given rights. In reply I told him that that was the first time I ever heard it said that God draws any state lines.'"

A half century of farm life has, I believe, given me some insight into the lot of the farmer. And while it has not been an unhappy one, there have been opportunities lost sight of. Folks, I am telling you in all earnestness that you are in a position to make a mistake to 'Yes' on Sept. 6. Let us have more power in the state and if we cannot use it all, let it be sold outside."

Tamarack Talk

When a book comes from Booth Tarkington it is at once received as a worthy event in the literary world. However, of recent years there has been no novel that has carried the enthusiasm and success of "Penrod." The latest of his Tarkington's work is a portrait of the young and merely average American wife of the average business man. In this case the husband and his efforts, meager though they are, form the basis for the delineation of young Mrs. Greely's character. A woman anxious for social position which may come through her husband's advance, young Mrs. Greely, glibly and easily influenced by the jealous and less beautiful Aurelia, makes a wretched mess of Bill Greely's affairs. The author by no means excuses the faults of this social climber and would often there is a certain harshness and caustic irony toward Mrs. Greely. Yet nothing more leaves you to think that he has no feeling for her and you may notice that with a characteristic twist of his pen a note of sympathy is subtly shown and you think that perhaps after all Mrs. Greely may not be so much to blame as she seems to be. Tarkington may at least she will soon become different from her former ignorant self. So we should not say that Tarkington is entirely without the feeling for her, for he always leaves a pleasant taste. Tarkington may be likened to the poet, Edwin Arlington Robinson in that he sees beyond the facts and catches the "light" or "gleam" that shines out of the more sordid and the realities of the world.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Bertha Austin, sister of the bride, wore blue flowered silk and carried pink sandalwood; the bridesmaid, Mrs. Ruth Bryant, of North Jay, an intimate friend of the bride, wore white satin with pearl trimmings; her flowers were pink carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Gaydon Davis.

Following the ceremony, a buffet lunch was served to about thirty relatives and friends.

Here is the Point!

MEASURE the value of your paint by the years of service it will give you—plus the appearance and number of square feet it will cover to the gallon—and you will decide to use BPS—the Best Paint Sold—and in the end—the lowest in cost.

BPS Paint covers from 350 to 400 sq. feet; two coats; a cheap paint will cover not to exceed 250 sq. feet.

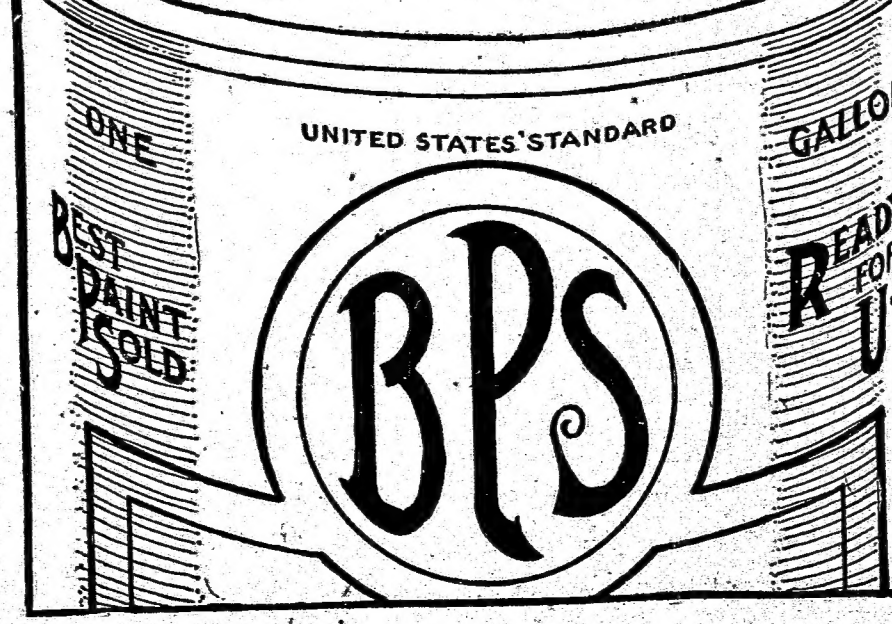

BPS wears for years and leaves a surface that can be re-painted successfully.

Think it over seriously; figure out the cost per year and the cost per gallon. BPS will be the best investment. Best Paint Sold.

Fro-joy 2-flavor pint package

WHEN Alice Bradley unites two new flavors each week for the Fro-joy 2-flavor pint package, she sees to it that the combination is not "just the usual thing".

The result is a perfect harmony blend . . . a dessert which you'll be proud to serve at any function.

No matter what you've discovered about ice creams: before, no matter what you've paid . . . you'll never find one more wholesomely pure and delicious than Fro-yoy.

This week the new Fro-yo 2-flavor pint package contains
MACAROON AND PEACH ICE CREAM

Remarkable Six-Cylinder Engine

Chevrolet's remarkable six-cylinder engine impresses you most vividly by its sensationally smooth performance. At every speed you enjoy that silent, velvet-like flow of power which is characteristic of the truly fine automobile!

With their low, graceful, sweeping lines and smart silhouette, their ample room for passengers and their sparkling color combinations and rich upholstery — the new Fisher bodies on the Chevrolet Six represent one of Fisher's greatest achievements!

A black and white illustration of a vintage car, possibly a 1930s model, parked next to a small, single-story building with a chimney. The car is facing right, and the building is to its left. The illustration is simple and stylized, with bold outlines.

Outstanding Economy

The new Chevrolet Six is an unusually economical car to operate. Not only does it deliver better than twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline, but its oil economy is also outstanding.

...and its economy is equal to, if not actually greater than, that of its famous four-cylinder predecessor!

Remarkable Dependability

In order to appreciate what outstanding value

the Chevrolet Six represents, it is necessary to remember that it is built to the world's highest standards. In design, in materials and in workmanship, it is every inch a quality car!

Amazing Low Prices

An achievement no less remarkable than the Chevrolet Six itself is the fact that it is sold at prices so amazingly low! Furthermore, Chevrolet delivered prices include the lowest financing and handling charges available!

Leo Stearns has finished work for Henry Durgin.

Henry Durgin has driven his stock home from his pasture on the hill, formerly the Flint White Mountain Farm.

E. J. Flint is having a long, hard pull with his work and the care of his uncle, Dexter Flint, who is very ill.

Town Character, Name Him
There is a brave mountaineer,
Who drives a car without fear,
When chicks take to their heels,
Who's no pity he feels,
They know he never shifts gear,
Ride with him in a hurry,
You don't have to worry,
For on him you can bet
As he never has yet,
Had an accident or a flury.
His motto, you see,
Is as true as can be,
It is better to be safe than sorry.
